STRAY BITS OF SPORT FROM EVERY ANGLE

Those Yale folks were blinded to the fact that Yale played real football, but because Princeton played the most weird game ever staged by a Tiger eleven. They overlooked the fact that the most amazing luck added to Princeton's blundering, was the only thing that enabled Yale to slip through to victory.

And so they boasted about what they'd do to Harvard and they bet on their team—and the score was Harvard, 41; Yale, 6.

Jeff Smith is claiming the middle-weight championship. He points to his record as substantiating his claim. The record he dispenses shows that he has scored something like twenty knock-outs, won about twenty-one other bouts in decision, never was knocked down or out and lost only two fights—one on a foul, the other via the decision route.

"Also," asserts Smith's press agent, "Jeff knocked out Les Darcy in five rounds."

College youths who enter the big league ranks these days are accepted by the veterans without the necessity of submitting to "initiation" ceremonies. In the old days the vets scoffed at college youths as professional ball players. They termed them "elites," ignored them, made them ineligible for them generally, and usually broke the spirit of most of the college boys who really had enough ability to hold down regular jobs if they had been given a little assistance by their teammates.

Billy Tow, weight 114 pounds, gathered in the distinction of being the lightest varsity quarter back in the United States during the 1915 season. He piloted the Amherst team and he piloted well.

The White Sox have just imported a pitcher from the Louisville club who operates a "wrinkle ball." First rubs the seams of the ball very viciously on his pants, which causes the threads to wear bare. Then he digs his knuckles

BILLY LUSCOMBE FEATURES
THE WYOMING VICTORY

BILLY LUSCOMBE, former quarter back for the Vigilant football eleven, was the star in the game yesterday, when the U. S. S. Wyoming eleven captured the naval championship of the Atlantic Fleet by defeating the U. S. S. New Hampshire eleven in the crucial game for the title by a 6-0 score at the Polo Grounds in New York City.

Luscombe is a local boy, and has made both gridiron and baseball history on the sand lots here before joining the navy. In the game Tuesday his wonderful broken field work was a feature of the game, and his ability at breaking away from the tacklers was a big feature of this naval title clash.

During the third period Luscombe was injured and forced to retire, but his work at handling the team and individual efforts was equal to that of the wonderful "Oliphant." Luscombe is a first-class machinist and is one of the best all-around athletes in Uncle Sam's navy.

Johnny Gilroy, the star half back of the local Georgetown eleven, is second with the same number, but scoring the strength of the opponents of the two teams Barrett is given the preference.

BRICKLEY RUMOR IS DENIED AT PENNSY

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.—The rumor that Charles Brickley, Harvard's former star back field player, has been approached by the University of Pennsylvania football authorities in regard to the coaching of the Quakers' football team, is unfounded, states Wharton Sinker, chairman of the football committee of that institution. Information was received yesterday that the former Crimson athlete had received an offer to take over the coaching of the Red and Green eleven in 1916. Mr. Sinker said: "The rumor that the football authorities at the University of Pennsylvania have approached Brickley about the subject of coaching the football team in 1916, has no truth in it whatever. I do not see how this rumor could have been circulated, as the football committee for the 1916 season is not empowered to select a new coach, and this is left for the new football committee to do. The new board will not be elected until after the election is not decided until December 11."
